

AI Tools

Reflection

I have been able to produce decent quality UI tools, but after all I am the one that has to do all the thinking in the prompt, the AI is limited to the quality of the prompts I come up with. I find AI tools like Chat GPT easy to use, but not as easy as most people think, Chat GPT isn't the genie of the lamp, you have to give the AI a very specific and clear prompt. AI is not that good when it comes to usability, because AI is unable to make decisions according to user feedback. I think that the UX role isn't going to change significantly, AI just saves the UX designer time and effort, and is going to stay this way until I can make decisions, not randomly, but based on reason and previous experience.
